ORGANIZATION

ASSOCIATED COUNTRY WOMEN OF THE WORLD (ACWW)

In 1930, Lady Aberdeen and a small group of women conceived the idea of calling together the rural women of the world at Vienna. When they met, it was discovered that, although these country women lived in different countries and spoke different languages, they all had the same interests and problems. The Associated Country Women of the World was then organized in London in 1930, with Mrs. Alfred Watt of Canada as the first president.

ACWW is a worldwide organization, bringing together and representing the interest, needs, and aspirations of that majority of the world's population. It is the largest international organization for rural women, with a multi-million membership in sixty-eight countries, and has consultative status with the United Nations. Its objectives are to provide opportunities to exchange ideas, to work together for mutual benefits, and to take an active part in the movement toward international understanding and unity, thereby making a contribution to world peace.

When the Associated Country Women of the World met in Washington in 1936, South Carolina had five official delegates and a total attendance of 267 council women to attend the conference. South Carolina Family and Community Leaders' official delegate(s) attend ACWW Triennial Conferences.

COUNTRY WOMEN'S COUNCIL USA (CWC)

In 1939, the Liaison Committee was formed to meet during the three-year periods between international conferences so as to sustain interest among the U.S. Constituent Societies.

In 1946, its name was changed to the Country Women's Council USA and meetings have been held since its formulation for members to discuss and consult on matters pertaining to ACWW. Any group with ACWW membership may apply for membership in CWC. Through its standing committees, it has promoted letter friends, exchange programs, ACWW Individual Membership, the Countrywomen Magazine of ACWW, and CWC News Sheet.

NATIONAL VOLUNTEER OUTREACH NETWORK (NVON)

The National Volunteer Outreach Network was organized in Austin, Texas in 1995. The South Carolina Family and Community Leaders joined this organization in 1995. Mrs. Mary Nell Fairey and Mrs. Betty Buff of South Carolina initially served as Vice President and Advisor, respectively, of this national organization.

NVON brings together organizations that are members of the ACWW to promote friendship and understanding between member organizations for better communication in the United States and World.

HISTORY OF COOPERATIVE EXTENSION SERVICES

In the early 1900's an interest developed in improving agriculture and rural life. The United States Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with state government and farm organizations, developed programs to accomplish this aim. They recognized that they must reach the youth and homemakers with educational programs if home and family living were to improve. Home economics research was being conducted on some land grant college campuses. The findings of this research could be applied to rural life through an education program of homemakers.

In South Carolina, O.B. Martin, State Superintendent of Education, developed a keen interest in these opportunities for youth, and with the help of Seaman Knapp, who provided the leadership for the early Extension concept, Martin provided opportunities for teachers to participate in training for youth clubs such as corn clubs and tomato clubs. Marie Cromer, a teacher in Aiken County, led the way for girls' clubs in South Carolina in 1916. Another teacher, Dora Dee Walker, also became interested in girls' clubs, and then extended it to women's clubs. These two women were employed by Winthrop College to conduct an Extension program for women and girls.

In 1914, the Smith-Lever Act was passed by Congress providing for an educational program in agriculture and home economics, and related areas in all states. Because the plan provided for cooperation of federal, state, and county governments, the program offered by each land grant college became known as the Cooperative Extension Service. Additional home economists were employed to lead the home economics program for women and youth.

The original plan for the homemakers clubs was for a project leader in each club to receive specific training from the Extension Home Economist and teach the lesson in the monthly Club Meeting. In this way, individuals were sharing their knowledge, making it possible for the county Extension home economists to serve large numbers of people. This idea proved to be an effective method for reaching large numbers of homemakers with home economics information. The clubs were also the core for group action of community improvement(s), membership and information for county councils, and leaders in county and state-wide improvements.

HISTORY OF FAMILY AND COMMUNITY LEADERS

The first official home demonstration club in South Carolina was organized in Sumter County in 1916 and other clubs were rapidly organized throughout the state. The first two County Councils of Farm Women, composed of members of the home demonstration clubs, were organized in Calhoun and Abbeville counties in 1919. The South Carolina Council of Farm Women was organized at Winthrop College in June, 1921. Subsequently, the name was changed to South Carolina Home Demonstration Council in 1957 and to South Carolina Extension Homemakers Council in 1966. In 1967, the Palmetto Home Demonstration Council officially joined the South Carolina Extension Homemakers Council. The name, South Carolina Association for Family and Community Education was adopted in 1992, and the present name, South Carolina Family and Community Leaders in 1995.

In South Carolina, the Family and Community Leaders have had outstanding accomplishments. A few examples include: Compulsory school attendance, adult education, health issues, educational opportunities for young minorities, school lunch programs, school drop-outs, physically handicapped, family abuse, immunization programs and day care.

STATE ORGANIZATION

The South Carolina Family and Community Leaders was organized at Winthrop College in June 1921. It is composed of Family and Community Leaders Clubs throughout the state. These clubs are organized into the county associations.

The purpose of the state organization is to develop, strengthen and correlate the work of the county associations in the state and their efforts to assist people in promoting all interests pertaining to the higher standards of living in homes and communities. The state organization represents the common interests of the county organizations in planning cooperative educational work and advising with Extension representatives in determining all statewide policies.

The state organization meets annually. Programs are developed to help people keep abreast of state and national affairs. The work of the organization is reviewed and a program of work adopted for the new year.

The SCFCL system is recognized as one of the most effective informal adult educational systems in the world. No other such system of adapting current research findings for application and wide diffusion is known. Leaders throughout the county, state, national, and international levels have emerged from the FCL organization.

DISTRICTS

The forty-six counties of the South Carolina Family and Community Leaders Organization are divided into three districts. A representative from each district (District Director) serves on the state FCL board. These District Directors are responsible for planning and presiding at district meetings. An extension staff person is designated to serve as advisor/contact to the District Director.

COUNTY ORGANIZATIONS

The County Organizations for Family and Community Leaders, composed of the members in Family and Community Leaders Clubs, have as their objectives to raise the standard of home and community life; to develop leadership and initiative among people in the promotion of those movements which are for the up building of community life; to bring together members of Family and Community Leaders Clubs in the county for those ends; to act as aids to extending the work of the Extension Agents. The County Councils meet twice during the year - in the fall, to present the plan of work for the year, and in the spring of the year, to review the accomplishments and make recommendations for further work.

FAMILY AND COMMUNITY LEADERS CLUBS

The FCL club is usually organized in natural communities or common interests. It is open to people of all ages, regardless of race, color, sex, religion, national origin, disability, political beliefs, sexual orientation, or marital or family status. The club has educational lessons throughout the year. Education chairmen in each club help to develop the yearly program of work. The officers are free to make organizational decisions to meet the needs of the club. Members have opportunity for individual development and for improvement of family and community life. The FCL club is affiliated with the county FCL organization.

ACWW PENNIES FOR FRIENDSHIP

ACWW Pennies For Friendship is a donation of money (both large and small) given voluntarily by people who believe in person to person help for other women who are attempting to improve their living standards and make better homes for their families. ACWW has consultative status with the United Nations. ACWW receives about three-fourths of its annual income from Pennies and this source allows projects and work to continue and expand in many ways to meet the needs of members and groups around the world. Voluntary donations to Pennies For Friendship make it possible for ACWW to speak and work for the benefit of all its members. The South Carolina Family and Community Leaders have CATEGORY ONE society membership in ACWW. Because of your membership in SCFCL, you have membership in this worldwide network. The SCFCL President is the voting delegate in all meetings of ACWW.

STATE PROJECT

“SCFCL Gives Hope” brings awareness to our members of the need for domestic violence shelters and gives hope to those who enter them by showing them that they are not alone and that there are those who are willing to stand by them and help them in their time of need. We are collecting and giving needed items to domestic violence victims in our state through local women’s shelters.

STATE PROJECTS IN COMMON WITH NVON

Continue Our Support Of Water Around The World

Water is an essential resource and fundamental building block of life. This project creates awareness of problems that arise when clean water is lacking and how we can help those in need around the world.

Double Your Influence...Add To/2

Volunteering in the U.S. is at a 10-year low. While many organizations are rethinking their volunteer recruitment efforts, that alone can't change the low volunteering rate. We need to start taking volunteer retention seriously. This project emphasizes volunteer retention and recruitment.
